Course Overview

This programme is designed to follow the new national standards for Further and Higher Education. If you work as a trainer or want to begin teaching as a career this introductory course helps you to understand teaching methods, principles and skills required by the education sector. It is intended as a 'taster' and will provide you with a starting point if you wish to progress to a full teaching qualification.

This introductory, knowledge-based teaching qualification has no minimum teaching practice requirement. Therefore, it may be undertaken by individuals who are not in a teaching role. However, there is a minimum requirement to take part in micro-teaching.

Course Requirements

There are no specific entry requirements although it is usual to have a Level 3 qualification in your subject area. Additionally, Level 2 Literacy and Numeracy qualifications are expected. Please note that the course will only run if a minimum number of students enrol.

What You Will Learn

Achieving this Award will provide sufficient evidence that the student has acquired the necessary skills and knowledge to prepare, plan, deliver and evaluate basic teaching and learning sessions, in a variety of teaching or training contexts.

Assessment

Assessment will be portfolio based and students will be required to take part in micro-teaching with their peers.

Progression

You can progress onto the Level 5 Diploma in Education & Training, or you can follow the training career path and complete the CIPD Certificate in Training Practice. You can also work towards Assessor or IQA qualifications.

Career Options

The award is widely recognised in community based teaching and for companies who have a training requirement but no qualified staff.

Completing an education and training course can lead to a wide range of career opportunities in the field of education, instructional design, and training. Here are some career options for individuals who have completed such a course:

Teacher or Educator: Work as a classroom teacher, instructor, or professor at various levels of education, including elementary, secondary, and post-secondary education.

Trainer or Corporate Trainer: Train employees or clients in various industries, providing job-specific skills and knowledge.

Instructional Designer: Design and develop educational materials, including online courses, e-learning modules, and instructional content for schools or businesses.

Curriculum Developer: Create and modify educational curriculum, aligning it with standards and educational goals.

Distance Learning Coordinator: Manage and administer distance or online learning programs, ensuring that students have access to educational resources.

Online Instructor or Facilitator: Teach online courses or webinars, sharing expertise in specific subjects or skills.

Special Education Teacher: Work with students who have special needs, adapting educational content and methods to accommodate their learning requirements.

Mandatory Units
